DETAILED ACTION

Priority

1. Acknowledgment is made of applicant's claim for foreign priority based on an application filed in Germany on 09 August 2003. It is noted, however, that applicant has not filed a certified copy of the 103 37 023.4 application as required by 35 U.S.C. 119(b).
2. Acknowledgment is made of applicant's claim for foreign priority based on an application filed in Germany on 30 June 2004. It is noted, however, that applicant has not filed a certified copy of the 10 2004 031 682.1 application as required by 35 U.S.C. 119(b).

Claim Objections

3. Claims 6-21 are objected to under 37 CFR 1.75(c) as being in improper form because a multiple dependent claim cannot depend from any other multiple dependent claim. See MPEP § 608.01(n). Accordingly, the claims have not been further treated on the merits.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

4. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

5. Claims 1-5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Riemann 5,407,243 in view of Eichhorn 5,078,729 and further in view of case law.

Riemann discloses a device for the removal of ticks 10 comprising: a housing 12, a spreadable gripper tool 14, a spreader device 16, and presser device 58 that acts in the axial direction of the device to actuate the spreader device. Riemann further discloses a first actuation of the presser device effecting a spreading of the gripper tool by the spreading device and that a closing of the gripper tool is effected by a second actuation of the presser device. Riemann further discloses the device being rotated (Col. 4 ll. 33-45).

Riemann does not disclose an essentially closed cavity.

Eichhorn discloses an essentially closed cavity 49 for containing the tick.

It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art at the time of the invention to modify the device of Riemann with the cavity of Eichhorn in order to facilitate the containment of an engorged tick as taught by Eichhorn (Col. 5 ll. 17-21).

Riemann further does not disclose a rotation device that is actuated by a second actuation of the presser device.

Riemann discloses the device being rotated manually following the first and second actuation of the presser device (Col. 4 ll.33-45) rather than having the gripper rotated automatically by a rotation device that is activated by the actuation of the presser device.

It would have been obvious to one having ordinary skill in the art to modify the device of Riemann by automating the rotation of the gripper tool by causing it to rotate upon actuation of the pusher since it has been held that broadly providing an automatic or mechanical means to replace a manual activity which accomplished the same result is not sufficient to distinguish over the prior art, In re Venner, 262 F.2d 91, 95, 120 USPQ 193, 194 (CCPA 1958).
